A SILVER FROST

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WINTER will come, and nose can say it may; Winter will come, and tresses turn to gray. Turning to white. So run the years away.

Winter will come, but winter need not be Born of the storm, wild with the melody Of swaying pine, or mad, tempestuous sea.

Winter will come, age in its time appear; All of our years are after all a year. Seasons of life; spring, when the buds are here.

Season of dreams; and summer, hope's high noon; Autumn is turn, and round the golden moon; Winter will come—yet never comes too soon.

If it shall come as I have seen the white Of silver frost upon a moonlit night Paint all the world with new and pure delight.

A silver frost!—the tree, the fence, the cot, Sculptured in white, all ugly things forgot; Dawn without wind, and earth without a blot.

Let us grow old, our age a silver frost; Nothing we won, nothing we won or lost, But that we know, know it was worth the cost.

Let us grow old, let us grow old in peace; Silent the sky, now let the thunders cease; After the storm, this is the sweet release.

A silver frost! So I have seen it there Upon the brow, silencing every hair. Yes, it is age—but marvelously fair.

Mother's Cook Book

"You can bear me witness that I have endeavored to convince you of man's inextinguishable individuality, and of the organic nature of society, that there is no right without a parallel duty, no liberty without the supremacy of the law, and no high destiny without perseverance—that there can be no greatness without self-denial."—Francis Lieber's Address to Former Pupils.

TASTY GOOD THINGS

IF YOU have been served with a bowl of hot milk with a piece of toasted bread floating in it, for milk toast, you may like to review the way a real dish of old-fashioned milk toast is prepared:

Milk Toast.
Prepare the white sauce, using two heaping tablespoonsful of butter and two of flour, cook until bubbling hot and smooth, then add a quart of milk, a little at a time until well blended. Season with salt and set back where it will just simmer while the toast is being prepared. Toast the bread, using slices that have been cut from a day-old loaf. Use an electric toaster or a fork over coals to make the ideal toast. As each piece is prepared keep hot and when enough is prepared to serve the family, dip each crusty edge into hot milk, and butter generously—the more butter the better the toast. When all are thus prepared, boil up the white sauce and pour over the toast which has been placed on a large platter. Serve at once, piping hot. Once serve this toast properly made and it will be welcomed for one meal each week. Dried beef is nice served with such a dish, or generous slabs of rich cheese may be passed with it.

Baked Apple Salad.
Bake a good-sized apple which keeps its shape after coring. When cool remove the skin, scraping back the color that clings to the inside and paint it back on the cheek of the apple. Fill the centers with shredded almonds, and serve with a mayonnaise which has been enriched with a generous quantity of whipped cream. Be sure that the dressing is well seasoned.

Cheese Spread.
Put two cupsful of milk into a double boiler; when hot add two teaspoonsful of salt, one-half cupful of flour mixed with four tablespoonsful of butter, add one pound of cheese cut fine; cook until smooth, beating well. The addition of a little chopped pepper will vary the flavor. Spread on buttered bread or wafers, or use as a sandwich filling.

Onion, Apple, Date Salad.
Chop very fine half of a small Southern onion, add two cupsful of finely sliced apple, the same of tender celery, and a dozen dates which have been soaked and cut fine. Mix with a lightly seasoned salad dressing and serve on lettuce or garnished with the tender tips of celery.

Dyed Fur Popular for Winter Wraps

Peltry Also Much in Favor as Trimming for Milady's Frocks.

Fur should be worn logically in cold weather for warmth and protection. As a matter of fact, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, fur has little to do with weather, climate or anything else but fashion. To have a fur wrap or a frock ornamented with fur is no longer a distinction, and to be without fur is to be unusual. The manner of adding the fur swings from one extreme to the other, varied with all possible ingenuity from year to year. Far more discrimination in the use of fur is being shown by the designers this season than previously. Some of the models presented are real achievements. The fashion of using a fur border at the hem of an otherwise untrimmed coat persists. This practice does not come as a rule from the authorities. It is just among the things one sees en passant. Almost any sort of fur may be used with goodishness, depending largely upon the individual and the type of garment. Many new furs, or fur with new names, were introduced at the beginning of the present season. Few of them had the appearance of genuine quality and many were obviously of the humblest origin. Squirrel and rabbit skins which take dye beautifully are very popular. Even more so is Belgian lace used on the choicest gowns and wraps designed by Parisian couturiers. It is still of a price which admits of its use by women who may not buy the costlier furs. A large share said to be Australian is attractive in its natural color, shading from light to dark gray, in wide stripes.

The Charm of Dyed Fur.
Fur dyed to match the material of a frock or wrap met sudden response this season. It has undeniable charm, especially when trimming the latest colors in cloth and velours the new green, king's blue and a pastel blue with a bit more vitality than periwinkle, violet, mauve, tobacco brown, auburn and citron. The beauty in shades so far outweighs the artificiality of this novelty that it has taken well and endures as novelties do not always do. Among the Parisian designers to one has illustrated the possibilities of these matching furs more successfully than Madeline Vionnet. A model of her fancy, a gown and coat of quartz-green velours, with collar cuffs and deep hem bands of fur dyed the same shade, is lovely. Another, a violet, is built of the season's version of broadcloth, bordered with hare and cuffs, and sometimes other trimming of a different fur—sable, fox, kitfox, beaver or kolinsky. The most interesting variant offered in sealatin is the new gold-dyed seal, a shade seen in some of the handsomest coats shown this season. A particularly distinguished model has a deep shawl collar and wide flaring cuffs of Russian sable. Mink holds its own year after year. Even when its glory is dimmed for a season it comes back better than ever. In a few years mink has come out of the "old lady class" and is worn by the smartest of the younger set. The latest wraps of mink done by the best designers are unusual and entirely new in design. The fur is used in strips to attain certain shaded effects, roundabout, perpendicularly, diagonally or in other unique arrangements. Nothing is considered smarter for trimming the neck, sleeves and border of an ere ting wrap than strips of mink or think tails. This is a particular favorite of Philippe et Gaston, who use mink on some of their most superb wraps of brocade and metallic cloths. Lucien Lelong illustrates the beauty of snowy white fox as a supplement to a wrap of royal ermine, and uses it with the most enhancing effect on his evening wraps of mink.

Some rare and very beautiful furs, not generally known are coming into use from South America. They are real "finds." One is the vicuña, from the Andes, soft silky and tawny yellow in color. Another is llama, the historic beast of burden. Baby llamas provide the lovely furs obtainable only from a few exclusive houses. Not unlike the llama is alpaca, black, white and brown and chamom, resembling vicuña somewhat, in a lighter shade of yellow. The latest whim of the most chic Americans is for skunk, always becoming and always stylish.

The Scarf Ensemble.
A set of ten chiffon scarfs tells the time of day and suggests the weather. Even a thunderstorm is included. In each of them a single color predominates except in the casino and the rainbow scarfs. For dawn there is pink, orange for sunrise, yellow for mid day, gray for the clouds, brilliant flame for lightning, starry and silvery tones for evening, gray, black and red for the casino green for dancing and blues for midnight. These scarfs may serve a double purpose. They may be draped around the crown of a hat with their ends wound about the neck.

Slave chain necklaces and bracelets have made their appearance this season in most elaborate style. Plain and enameled links alternate. There are loops of jade, onyx and lapis and some are set with brilliantly colored stones or pearls.

Hat ornaments in such odd and striking shapes—anchors and streaks of lightning—are used on evening and afternoon dresses to give a certain "touch" to a sack or drapery.

Shoe horns measuring 10 inches with a hooked end that may be held firmly between the thumb and forefinger, will be a joy to the lady who does not like to bend over. They come in all colors and are decorated with a hand-painted figure and a rhinestone border.

A rich looking powder box is of black enamel and gold and is small and flat enough to fit into the palm of the hand, yet is big enough to carry an evening's supply of powder. A flower inset of platinum or white gold gives it an antique look.

Dutch-shaped pouch bags with either a strap band or lift handle come in tan, brown and black calfskin. An ivory ornament completes the clasp opening. Lining and flaps are of silk moiré in contrasting colors. Anklet bracelets are now on display in the shops. They are made of fine chains, interspersed with loops of various colors and small pearls.

Buckles Brighten Shoes
All sorts and kinds of buckles grace the new shoes. Cut steel, bronze and brilliant are among the more usual. White buckles of composition in stripes or small patterns are also popular.

of a slightly deeper tint. The olives, yellows, lemon, orange, flame, nasturtium, mustard in cloth and velvet. With fur sometimes short and soft and with longer and more shaggy, are among the intriguing things chosen particularly for the festive little type. Foxes are more fashionable than ever and more expensive. Women of fashion have become so sophisticated in their matters that they demand the genuine article in expensive furs. They are connoisseurs to a canny degree. The full skin neckpiece came back this autumn stronger than ever. Nobody Dictated To Coolidge

Washington, Dec. 22.—The appointment of Richard V. Taylor of Alabama as a member of the interstate commerce commission was a personal selection by President Coolidge and was not dictated by southern Democratic senators who have opposed the confirmation of Thomas F. Woodlock of New York to the commission. It was declared at the White House today.

The president selected Taylor and then called in Senator Underwood, Democrat, of Alabama, to approve the appointment. Underwood at once acquiesced and assured the president that Senator Hefflin, Democrat, of Alabama, also was favorable to the appointment.

Senator Blaise, Democrat, of South Carolina, charged on the senate floor that the appointment was the result of a "deal" between the president and southern Democrats to secure Woodlock's confirmation. The White House denied this charge.

Withhold Action In Langley Case

Washington, Dec. 22.—Until his case is finally disposed of by the courts, the house will withhold action looking toward expulsion of Representative Langley, Republican, of Kentucky, convicted for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Representative Burton, Republican, of Ohio, chairman of the special committee investigating the Langley case, reported today that there was no precedent for punishing a member elected after commission of an offense. Langley was re-elected while under indictment.

The courts must dispose of the case before the house can act. Burton declared. Langley has secured permission to bring the case to the supreme court for review. Considerable delay is expected before the court acts.

Auto Accident Case in Court

Negligence Alleged on the Part of Driver Who is Charged With Crossing to Wrong Side of Road—Woman Says She Was Permanently Injured.

Before Judge Hasbrouck and a jury in the supreme court a negligence action was taken up for trial Monday afternoon and continued this morning. The action grows out of a collision near Napanoch in July of last year when an automobile driven by DeWitt H. Mulford, husband of plaintiff, Cora A. Mulford, and a car of Clorinda Doughty, driven by Oscar Doughty, came in collision and injured Mrs. Mulford. She seeks damages from the defendant, alleging injuries to her hip which cause a stiffening of the hip joint and which it was testified were of a permanent nature and necessitate her using crutches.

It is alleged that a Ford coupe owned by the defendant and driven by Oscar Doughty and occupied by Horace Dineen was proceeding from the direction of Napanoch toward Grahamsville. The Chevrolet car of the Mulfords was coming down on the left of the road and crossed to the left and the collision resulted. The defendant claims that at the time the Chevrolet car was coming down on the left of the road and in order to prevent an accident the driver of the Ford was swerved from his right to the left to avoid hitting the Chevrolet but was unsuccessful.

The driver of the Ford was proceeding, according to testimony, about 20 or 25 miles an hour when the Chevrolet was first observed. Dineen testified that the Ford kept to the right of the road until about 40 feet from the Chevrolet, which continued to come on to the left of the road and when 40 feet away the driver of the Ford swung to the left to avoid hitting the Chevrolet. J. Wilbur Taylor, Jr., who was coming down from the same direction as the Chevrolet testified that he was driving a Dodge car behind the Chevrolet car for a distance of an eighth of a mile. The Chevrolet was running to the left of the road and turned to the right for him to pass. He was driving about 70 to 35 miles an hour when he passed the Chevrolet car some distance back from the scene of the accident. After he passed the Chevrolet car he continued on and met the Ford coupe. After he passed the Ford he looked around and saw the accident some distance up the road. The Chevrolet car was to the left of the road as it came down toward Napanoch. He went back and assisted in carrying Mrs. Mulford into a house. The Ford car was to its left of the road with the outside wheels on the macadam. The Chevrolet car was to its left also and was nearly at right angles to the road with the front end pointed across the road to the west where the Ford was.

Mrs. Mulford received injuries to her hip which are of a severe nature. Dr. Kemble testified that the injuries were permanent and were probably painful at times.

Brimmer & Canfield appeared for plaintiff and John D. Lyons is attorney of record for the defendant. Frank W. Brooks appeared for defendant. The case was sent to the jury at noon.

Brown of the committee on entertainment looked carefully after the wants of all and saw that each and every one received his share of eats and smokes.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 22, 1926.

THE NOBLE SPUD.

That a study of the natural adaptability of land in farms, with reference to farm management, so that labor and acreage are made to produce most economically, is essential, and that supply and demand are paramount regardless of market quotations and advice, are lessons to be drawn in the case of the 1925 crop of potatoes.

Elaborate plans made in the planting season may be entirely disrupted by weather conditions during the succeeding months. Insect pests and fungus diseases it is possible to control, but the farmer has with him during the entire growing season the weather problem. This was evident this year as to those who planted potatoes.

A comparison of the prices obtained for potatoes when the yield was large in 1924, and the price obtained when the crop was affected by the weather, in 1925, is of interest. In 1924 the average yield of potatoes was 140 bushels per acre. In New York state the average yield in 1925 was 87 bushels, and in both years the acreage was about the same.

In September, 1924, potatoes brought 49 cent a bushel. The bumper crop reduced the price until on October 15 potatoes were available at 35 cents a bushel, and on November 1 the price had dropped to 20 cents and there it remained until December 1. Farmers in many instances disposed of potatoes by feeding to stock.

In 1925, before the crop was harvested, it was indicated that it would be short. On September 30, 1925, potatoes were available at 75 cents a bushel. As the shortage became more evident the price began to advance until on October 15 it was up to $1.00 a bushel, and on November 1 potatoes were sold as high as $2.00 a bushel. The price now is around $1.75 a bushel.

Farmers who accepted suggestions relative to a reduction of the potato acreage in 1925 probably will not be so ready to accept similar advice in the future when they scan the price which is being obtained this year as compared to the cheap potato price of 1924.

ALL MAY SEE A SHOW.

Everybody likes to go to a good show, but everybody is not fortunate enough to be able to pay the high prices asked in New York city. For that good reason everybody cannot attend the theatre in the metropolis. But before long maybe it will be possible for people to see a performance without being gouged out of more than the entertainment is worth. Now there seems to be some likelihood that the question of prices will be adjusted so extortion will not be tolerated.

The constitutionality of the law prohibiting speculators and others from charging more than fifty cents excess for tickets being upheld. State Comptroller Murphy has started to enforce the statute. His plan is to proceed without drastic action but unless all hands live within the law the comptroller intends to utilize means to stop the sale of the tickets at the illegal prices. The idea is to call a conference of all concerned, including the press, the producers, the ticket agencies, the public and any others who may be eligible. In his opinion it should be possible to discuss the proposition so that in the future the law will be obeyed and all those interested treated fairly. It is not his ambition to adopt spectacular methods but he does not intend to allow speculators to gouge the people out of as much as fifteen or seventeen dollars a ticket. He has evidence of an instance of this sort.

Apparently, now that the law has been held constitutional, there will be less trouble over this hitherto pressing problem. The people feel that they were being done up unjustly, and they were, and so did everybody else, it would seem, except the speculators. If Comptroller Murphy makes anything like progress in clearing up this annoyance in New York, up-staters, as well as down-staters, may be able when in New York to see a good show. As it is, only the most prosperous can expect to attend anything but a movie, and a movie that is on its second or third run.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

THE SLOW STOMACH.

That a great many cases of "stomach trouble" are due to the slow emptying of the stomach, is the teaching we are now receiving from our stomach specialists.

They point out that where the food is lying in the stomach for a prolonged period, that just as in any similar condition where food is not preserved, that this undigested food really has harmful properties in it which set up an irritation in the stomach wall.

This irritation may be just like an irritation of the skin, with extreme redness and soreness.

This is the common form of stomach ailment, which with a soft diet in small amounts, allows a fair degree of health.

Where the irritation is severe however, then the more serious ailments such as ulcer or a cancer may result.

Where the stomach is "slow" naturally, or where the individual is of the nervous or emotional type, then it would be wise to assist nature in the manner suggested in a previous article. That is to lie on the right side for fifteen minutes, four or five hours after each meal. As the healthy stomach usually gets rid of its meal in four hours, anything left in after that may start some irritation. If you lie on the right side for fifteen minutes, any undigested food should syphon into the intestine. The stomach thus emptied gets back into its proper shape and position in the body.

This is of course not always convenient, but getting the slow digesting material out of the stomach after four or five hours, should be the aim for this type of indigestion.

Further, where one is under heavy strain or emotional disturbance only light meals should be eaten.

Emotional disturbances can "slow up" the muscular actions even in a healthy stomach.

SAMSONVILLE.

Samsonville, Dec. 22.—The address last Sunday evening by the Rev. Stanley P. Davis of New York was enjoyed by a full house. It is hoped more people will be interested in Sunday school work hereafter.

Mrs. Algal Barringer has recovered from her illness at Maybrook and has come home. All hope for her speedy recovery.

Assa Barringer had the misfortune to fall and break his leg. Dr. DuMont was there on Friday morning.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

THE FIRST NAVAL ROSTER.

The twenty-second day of December 1775, is one of a number of days on which, according to one historian or another, the American navy was born. What actually happened on this day of 150 years ago was that the first roster of officers for the navy of the Revolution was confirmed by the Continental Congress. The roster bore 18 names, with that of Essek Hopkins at the top, as commander-in-chief of the fleet. Then came four captains—Dudley Saltonstall, Abraham Whipple, Nicholas Biddle and John Burroughs Hopkins.

Sixth on the list was a name which ere long was to eclipse all the others in renown—that of John Paul Jones, then commissioned as a first lieutenant. Following Jones there were three other first lieutenants, five second lieutenants and three third lieutenants. Much tradition and romance and not a little of deliberate misstatement about John Paul Jones have produced many controversies about some parts of his career, but it is now agreed by writers of naval history that his name first appeared in American navy annals 150 years ago today. That fact alone makes this date a memorable one in the diary of America.

As to the other names in this historic navy list, varying degrees of fame attached to them as the Revolution progressed. Several passed out of the picture early; others toiled faithfully and well—even bravely—but are today practically forgotten. Essek Hopkins, whose title as commander-in-chief was designated to establish him with a naval rank equal to that of Washington in the army, and who was addressed sometimes as commodore and sometimes as admiral, was, at times a popular hero and then again the target for bitter abuse and political persecution. His career will be followed closely in future stories in this series.

John Paul Jones, although on duty from the first moment of the navy's existence, did not attain the full measure of his renown until the war was well along. But this was through no fault of his own. He, like all these pioneers of our sea forces, had tremendous odds to contend against, in the endeavor to achieve measurable results on the sea against Britain's powerful naval armament. One of their great difficulties at all times was to secure sailors in competition with the scores of privateers which were fitted out yearly in many ports along the coast. Other competition of the same sort was with the little navies supported more or less regularly by eleven of the thirteen colonies.

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

Lady Nicotine Sets New Record

Smokers of U. S. During 1935 Paid Out $1,424,000,000—Feminine Use of Cigarettes Brings Total to Eighty Billion.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Lady Nicotine had the biggest year in her history in 1935.

Smokers of the United States paid $1,424,000,000 for cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and snuff this year, on the basis of estimates made on internal revenue figures issued today by the treasury.

Cigarette consumption for the year will reach 80,000,000,000 about 12,000,000,000 more than last year, according to the tax returns. The retail price paid for this pile of fags would more than meet this year's interest on the public debt.

More than 7,200,000,000 cigars were smoked during the year, if their average retail price was ten cents—the limit set by the late Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall, the nation laid out $720,000,000 for this tobacco product.

Smoking and chewing tobacco consumed, amounted to 328,000,000 pounds, and, although the use of snuff is not prevalent the country got away with 36,396,000 pounds, a material increase over last year's.

The enormous increase in the consumption of cigarettes is considered almost entirely due to their use by women.

One official ventured the guess that more than half of the feminine race over 17 years of age living in the larger cities smoke cigarettes.

Feminine use of cigarettes is rapidly spreading to the smaller towns and rural communities.

Officials predicted that more than 90,000,000,000 cigarettes would be smoked next year.

The newly organized De Molay basketball outfit will make its debut this evening against the strong Stone Ridge quintet on the latter's court. Supervisor McElhone moved that there be placed on the Hewitt map and a state highway be constructed to be known as the Wallkill New Hurley, Ireland Corners, and plans prepared for early construction.

Supervisors McElhone and Humphrey offered a resolution that the board petition the state highway department to place on state highway map two roads to be constructed, first, being the Pine Bush-Ellenville, Part 2, a connecting link with the Orange Lake-Walden highway.

Supervisor Elwyn objected to preference, stating that he has been waiting a long while for the construction of roads from Woodstock to Shandaken.

Supervisor McElhone said all the other towns have gotten roads and if the town of Shawangunk cannot get anything from Ulster county it is about time it goes into Orange county.

The county superintendent of highways cannot get into the town of Shawangunk through Ulster county unless he goes over one small piece of dirt road, without going through Orange county.

DAIRY

FACTS ABOUT COSTS OF PRODUCING MILK

That feed forms more than 50 per cent of the total cost of milk production, and that farms where cows are kept for a city milk-production service have much higher costs, are two of the items found in a recent two-year survey taken on 20 farms in Walworth county. This was done by men employed by the experiment station, says a writer in the Wisconsin Farmer.

In 1923 the average cost of producing 100 pounds of milk was $1.06 and the cost of producing a pound of butterfat was 36 cents. The average price received that year by these producers was $2.38 per 100 pounds of milk and 68 cents per pound of butterfat, showing 23 cents margin on milk and 12 cents margin on fat over costs.

In 1924 the average cost of producing milk was $2.25, and each pound of butterfat cost 62 cents to produce, while the dairymen received $2.38 per 100 pounds of milk and 65 cents for a pound of butterfat. This cut their margins to six cents and three cents.

Good home-grown crops of grain and forages help a great deal to lower the expenses in the feed bill, and wise buying of the necessary additional feed items helps to reduce the cost some more. Labor amounted to about 25 per cent of the costs, and it was reckoned at only 26 cents an hour. Milk hauling and pasture costs amounted to about 6 per cent of all costs.

Men conducting milk routes found it cost $3.42 for each 100 pounds of milk, but the return was proportionate to costs in most cases. The cost of cow keeping was $224 a head with one farm where milk was taken to a city route. The average cost of keeping a cow on all the farms was $142 a year.

Cows averaging less than 200 pounds fat formed herds which were losers in this intensive dairy region. Those making 220 to 250 pounds and over were on the profit side for their owners.

Balanced Ration Quite Necessary in Dairying

Dairy cattle, in particular, but all animals in general, require plenty of good feed. Unless this is provided, attention to other matters will be of no avail. Time spent in a study of the animals will teach the owner how to make up a balanced ration and enable him to feed animals more intelligently. Successful dairymen have found that it pays to remove waste from manure. They keep all feed boxes clean and sweet by prompt removal of waste and by occasional washing with a liquid disinfectant prepared and applied in strict accordance with directions printed on the package.

Nature has generously furnished us with one of the best means of controlling diseases, in the form of sunlight. Nearly all disease-producing germs are quickly killed by rays of the sun. So all barns should be built with plenty of windows to admit an abundance of sunshine.

Clean bedding helps in keeping animals healthy and comfortable. Animals plastered with manure and filth show poor care. A dirty coat of hair provides a favorable breeding place for microbes and animal parasites, while, well-bedded, clean animals thrive much better.

Calving Cow Should Be Given Close Attention

The cow, due to calve, should be confined nights in a clean, warm shed or box stall. During the day it is best for the cow to run with the herd. Normal conditions should be maintained as far as possible, but the safety of the calf and the health of the cow must be insured.

Just prior to calving the cow should be receiving only light laxative feeds such as bran, oats, and oil meal. Alfalfa hay is always good. If wheat pasture is accessible, the kind of the grain is not so important as the amount fed. Grain should be reduced by one-half a few days before calving.

Dairy Hints

Cattle have the sharpest night herons next, dogs the poorest.

A well-ventilated and light barn is essential. Remove all litter twice a day.

A too generous feeding of the calf for the first few days may result in scours.

It is a waste of time to try to feed a calf from a bucket until he is good and hungry.

Where mature sires are too costly, it is often possible to purchase a well-bred bull calf that will, in the future, add much to the herd.

Purchased stock is much better than wild-car stock, says John A. Aray, North Carolina dairy extension specialist.

To produce good butter, it is important that milk pails, cans, and separator be well cleaned and sterilized after each usage.

WHY

Planes Are Held Impractical in Arctic

Dirigibles, not airplanes, must be used if an aerial survey of the Arctic regions is to be successful, according to Donald B. MacMillan, who was compelled to abandon that part of his expedition to the North. From his and Amundsen's experience, he was convinced that the uncertainty of landing places and the unreliability of caches of fuel and food made travel by air planes exceedingly hazardous. For that reason, and because adverse weather had set in earlier than had been expected, he advised that further exploits by naval planes be discontinued this year. "A fjord is free today and icebound tomorrow," was one of the explorer's radio messages from the Far North. "A cache under such conditions, is not a help but a menace, for, if depended upon and a plane arrives out of fuel, destruction is the inevitable result. The lighter-than-air machine can do the work and should do it at the earliest opportunity." Naval officers declare that the dangers of venturing into the Arctic regions with a dirigible such as the "Los Angeles" are tremendous. They point out that if the big gas bags get weighted, with snow or ice from frozen mist and rain, they might never return. On their advice, the naval airships were not allowed to fly to the polar regions in search of Amundsen and Ellsworth when it was feared that they were lost last summer.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Why Gasoline "Goes Up"

A large percentage of automobile mechanics may be seen smoking while working on cars, even when tinkering with vacuum tanks. Motorists seeing this conclude that gasoline has ceased to be dangerous, and because nothing happens they acquire a contempt for its known hazards. Sometimes, however, something does happen and the result is always serious.

The vapor from a gallon of gasoline when mixed with the right portion of air produces a hazard equal to 35 pounds of dynamite.

If a motorist will consider the potential destructive power of gasoline on a par with dynamite fewer accidents of this nature will occur.

Why Circular Rainbow

The rainbow is caused by light from the sun passing into a drop of water and out again after reflection from the far side. The light is refracted, as we say, both where it enters the drop and where it leaves the drop, and thereby split up into its original colors. Now, the red, say, or any other given color, reaches the eye of the observer only when the straight lines from drop to sun and drop to eye make a particular angle with each other; the reason for this comes from the laws of refraction.

Why Columbine Is Liked

Among the reasons advanced for making the columbine our national flower are: First, forms of the columbine grow wild in all states of the Union, with a possible exception of Louisiana; second, it can be cultivated easily in any garden; third, it lends itself admirably to conventional design; fourth, the name comes from the same root word as Columbus; fifth, the technical name, aquilegia, comes from the same root word as eagle, our national emblem.

"Closed Shop," as It Were

It was an understatement in Columbia times that salubrious sons should marry minister's daughters.

RedMen's Festival At Saugerties

Esopus Tribe, No. 482, Improved Order of Red Men of Saugerties, held their annual festival at the Orpheum Theater in Saugerties on Sunday evening before one of the largest audiences that has ever attended such an affair.

Henry A. Williams, past sachem of the Saugerties Tribe, presided at the meeting and spoke of the work done throughout the year and also the sum of $10,000 which has been expended in charity by the Esopus Tribe during the past thirteen years of their existence. The other speakers of the evening were James P. Gage, great sachem of the state great council, and Lewis M. King of Schoenectady, president of the Northern Association of Red Men, who spoke upon the local tribe and congratulated them upon the work they are engaged in.

In concluding the program, Santa Claus made his appearance and a general distribution of gifts from the big Christmas tree took place and the six orphans of the tribe were presented with clothing and shoes while 450 boxes of candy were also given away.

A solo was rendered very touchingly by W. Hoyt Overbush, and Power's orchestra furnished music for the occasion. The festival was most successfully carried out by the Esopus Tribe.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service)

DOYLE NOW LEADS FORTY AND EIGHT

If you see two virile young fellows clad in chaps and all the rest of the accepted cowboy paraphernalia going about a convention city of the American Legion and "shooting up the town" just to add zest to the occasion, it's dollars to doughnuts that one of the redoubtable pair setting off the blanks is Stanley M. Doyle, better known as "Larry." The side-kick and pal of the man who is now chief de chemin de fer, or chief high muckymuck of Forty and Eight, honor society of the American Legion, is Carroll E. Griffin.

"Larry" Doyle, however, we have it on good authority, is neither cowboy nor gunman. He's, so tame that, though he now lives in Montana and heads the cowboy, pony-riding delegation from the state up in the mountains, he was born in Minnesota and spent a goodly portion of his life among the cornfields of Iowa. He attended the grades and high school at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and it is not of record that his cowboy passion for fun had asserted itself at that early date, at least in its convention-parade, cow-pony fashion.

Spending three years at St. Thomas college at St. Paul, he entered the employ of the Rock Island railroad. After two years with the Rock Island he joined the transportation department of the Northern Pacific at Glendive, Mont.

Enlisting in the air service at Omaha in 1917, he was assigned to the school of military aeronautics at Austin, Texas, and later to Kelly field at San Antonio. He later served at Camp Udon and at Fort Sill. He was discharged at the latter place in February, 1919. He then enrolled in the college of law at Drake university, Des Moines, Iowa. After completing his course in May, 1922, he returned to Glendive and began the practice of law. He was elected city attorney in 1923 and holds that office at present.

Soon after its organization, the new chief de chemin de fer joined Argonne post of the Legion at Des Moines. He was transferred later to Dawson post No. 25 at Glendive. He was post historian and then for three years a member of the post executive committee. He has been department historian and is now department vice commander of Montana. In the Forty and Eight he has risen from chief de train of his local unit at Glendive to grand chief de train, chef-inot national and sous chef de chemin de fer and then to chief de chemin de fer, to which position he was elected at Omaha in recognition of his outstanding services.

More Than One Million Boys to Play Baseball

Detailed plans for the junior world's baseball series are being worked out by the national Americanism commission of the American Legion. Arrangements for the series, which is to be held at Philadelphia in connection with the national convention of the American Legion, are being developed. Frank Clay Cross, director of the commission, in conjunction with George W. Orton, director of sports for the sesquicentennial celebration there next year of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Leagues will be organized by Legion posts throughout the country. Contests will be held in local communities, by congressional districts, by states, by regions and then by sections. Winners in the four sectionals, eastern, central-southern, middle-western and western, will cross bats for national honors at Philadelphia.

Officials of the National Amateur Athletic federation, who are deeply interested in the plan, estimate that 300,000 boys will be drawn into play in the first year's competition. They anticipate that the total number of boys to be interested in the game of baseball during the first year as a result of this competition will reach more than 1,000,000.

Soviet Expects No Help from A F of L

Proposed Trip of the "Left Wing" Workers—Rocks Bank Heavily On Visit of Foreigners.

Moscow, Dec. 22.—News from America that left wing labor organizations there are collecting money under the stimulus of the English Communist, Purcell, to send a delegation on a tour of the Soviet Union has aroused enthusiasm in Moscow. The United States is the only important nation left which has not yet sent a labor junket to Russia and the Bolsheviks feel that an American visit would be an ideal climax to the series of calls paid this year by groups of workmen from almost every European country. Comment in Soviet circles is always bitter against the American Federation of Labor, and in this instance the Russians expect no collaboration from the cohorts of William Green. But the hope is expressed that, despite the hostility of the Federation toward the Soviet Union, and toward Purcell, that Purcell will be successful in inducing the radical trade unions of New York and Chicago to recognize the advantages of an official inspection of "the first workers and peasants republic."

Visit Made Pleasant.

The Communists lay a great deal of store by the visits of foreign workmen, and no effort is spared to make their stay in Russia agreeable. Once the foreign visitors reach Russia, the government, the trade unions, the communist party and the communist international vie with one another in extending hospitality to them.

Brass bands and cheering crowds meet the delegations at every station, which are decorated with banners inscribed in the language of the visitors with messages of welcome and proletarian mottoes. In Moscow the visitors are wined and dined, carried about in the best of official automobiles and lodged in the most comfortable hotel rooms.

They are addressed at banquets by the heads of the government and have private access to the most inaccessible figures of the regime. They are supplied with passes, and permitted to go wherever they please.

Results Are Profitable.

That these tactics repay the Communist cause far more than the outlay is illustrated by the results. The English delegation produced a report which has been the chief mine for material for the British Labor Party's campaign to trade with Russia. The German representatives, who were given a reception second only to the ovation accorded the English, returned to their country with an account of conditions which is still being used effectively for the benefit of the Communist party there. And the Czech-Slovakians, who came to Russia just before the recent parliamentary elections, went back and helped roll up more than a million red votes for the comrades.

Besides these delegations, the Austrians, Swedes, Norwegians and Danes have sent labor representatives, and France and Belgium have sent parties of liberal and radical teachers to Russia this year. Of the chief European countries, only Italy has held aloof.

In spite of the curious diplomatic unity between the arch-enemy of communism and the leaders of the communist state, Mussolini has not yet permitted an Italian labor delegation to visit Russia.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE GALLOPING TEEBIE.

The teebie is supposed to be the swiftest living creature extant, although the title is a misnomer as he cannot gallop, having no hind legs. Desert traffic cops in Arizona find it next to impossible to halt the speeding animals, as they are not able to see them in time. It is on record that a full-grown teebie in 1936 ran all the way from Yuma to Salt Lake City in forty-seven minutes, and could have gone faster if his feet had not melted down.

A Brazil nut forms the body of this curious beast, and the head is a double peanut, with split nutty ears and popcorn ears. The neck, legs and tail are toothpicks, while the feet are split peanuts. As is usually done with these creatures, chewing gum is used to stick everything together.

that the building will be ready for use within a very short time. This building will afford us a suitable place for all of our meetings and social activities and a rendezvous for Legionnaires at all times. Its contribution to the future success of the post cannot now be over imagined. Its erection was made possible by an implicit faith in us, built up at the time if you please, on the part of the public at large who cooperated with us in the raising of the funds necessary for its erection and equipment. That it should be erected as a memorial to the World War dead is most appropriate. What more fitting a memorial can be imagined than this building from which the high ideals and disinterested peace-time service of the American Legion shall issue. But there will ever rest upon us the sacred duty to so direct our efforts that they shall truly be a fitting memorial to our honored comrades. I here want to pay tribute to the splendid service rendered to us by the architect, Mr. Charles S. Koffe. His contribution of his energy, time and ability, without compensation and covering the whole period of over four years during which the plans for the building have been taking form, is worthy of the unending gratitude of every member of the post.

Welfare Work.

The value of our welfare work cannot be expressed in dollars and cents we expended for the purpose. It has been, and should always continue to be, the purpose of this post to prevent any worthy ex-service man or any of his dependents from being in need. It is our greatest privilege to extend a helping hand to any comrade who needs it to help tide him over difficulties brought upon him by disease or other misfortune, and to do it in such a way that he is not pauperized but rather receiving what justly is his own. To this end general discussion of specific cases of welfare work has been suppressed. Our welfare committee has had a free hand, both as to consideration of the cases before it and as to the method and expense of providing for it. I believe it can truly be said that excellent work in this line has been performed by our welfare committee.

Americanism and Education.

I believe the first extensive work of this kind was undertaken this year by our Committee on Americanism and Education and the results obtained certainly justify a continuance and extension of these activities in future years.

The committee has been especially active in efforts to secure proper respect for the flag. Copies of the Flag Code have been published in the newspapers and liberally distributed throughout the city. A contest on the Flag Code, with a silk flag and standard as the prize, was conducted in the city schools, the prize being awarded on Flag Day to a class room at St. Peter's parochial school. This stimulated great interest in the Flag Code, not only in the children participating, but in adults as well, and cannot help but be reflected in a more proper care of the flag. An annual contest of this kind is worthy of the serious consideration of the post.

During the year the post sponsored uniform system of street decoration, using flags carried on a pole to be set in a sidewalk socket near the curb. It was unfortunate that the concern which installed these flags was not of the best business integrity and this greatly hampered the success of the plan. I believe, however, that it is generally agreed that this plan of street decoration is convenient, effective and economical. If properly handled it could probably be further extended in Kingston. Flag outfits of this kind can be obtained from reputable manufacturers at a price which would permit a liberal profit and I recommend for the future consideration of the post that we undertake, on our own account, the further installation of these flags in the city streets.

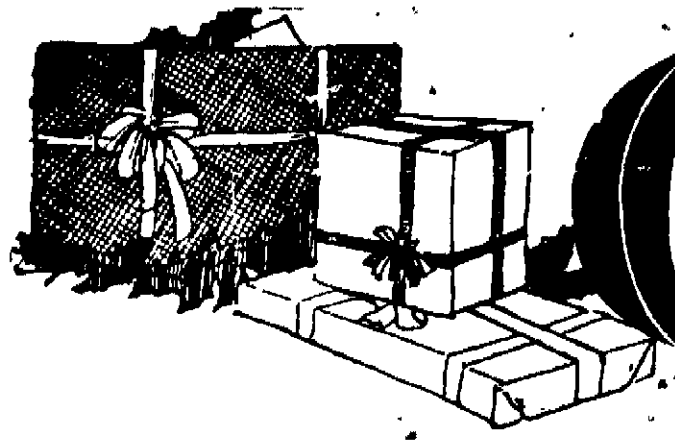

The committee has arranged for two five dollar prizes in history for the mid-year examinations in January as a means of stimulating interest in this important subject. This, too, might well be adopted as an annual award.

The committee also has a well worked out plan for a patriotic party as a welcome to newly naturalized citizens which it had expected to stage in January. Since it now appears that the new building may be dedicated next month, calling for considerable work of preparation, and that the two propositions could not be carried out simultaneously with good results, the carrying out of this plan has been suspended. As this is one of the most important features of the Americanism work of the Legion and, if properly carried out, would reflect great credit upon the post, I strongly recommend to the Americanism committee of the next administration that they take up this matter at once and stage the party at the earliest practicable date, in order that they may take advantage of the preparations made by the present committee.

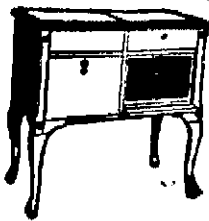

Post Activities.

Lack of a stated meeting place, with suitable facilities, has made it practically out of the question to carry on any social affairs in connection with our meetings. The January meeting dinner at the Advance Restaurant and the August meeting dinner at Golden Rule Inn were quite successful, however, and serve as but an indication of what may be accomplished along these lines when we become established in our own home.

Our outstanding social event, and one upon which we depend for considerable financial support, has been our annual Victory Ball on Armistice night. Year by year this has become a more important event in the social life of Kingston. Your Victory Ball committee this year was confronted with a serious problem in attempting to make the ball the usual success in that our date being fixed, we were to be preceded by two balls of importance and that we had only recently conducted an intensive building campaign which made the solicitation of a patron list inadvisable. As a special attraction a Vincent Lopez orchestra from New York City was engaged to furnish the music, which necessitated increasing the former admission price of $1.00 to $1.50. When it is considered in the light of these handicaps and that we had a larger attendance on the floor than ever and netted a profit of approximately $750, it must be conceded that the ball was highly successful. It is quite generally agreed that socially we scored heavier than ever before.

National Endowment Fund.

The complete story of our participation in the raising of the National Endowment Fund of $5,000,000 for disabled men and orphans of veterans is a long one and a sad one. I shall try to tell it as briefly as possible. At approximately the same time that our building campaign was being carried on we were notified by our county commander that our quota in the Endowment Campaign was $11,750. After considerable discussion, it was decided that it would be impossible for us after our building campaign to even attempt to raise that amount here this year and the field organization was so advised. Considerable pressure was exerted by them from time to time, stressing that the fund would be completed by the time of the Omaha convention and that our opportunity would thus pass. A compromise was finally reached whereby we were to conduct a campaign through the mails with no fixed quota. This was carried out in the latter part of September and the result was most disappointing. It seems to clearly show that no matter how worthy the cause, not more than one major financial campaign can be carried on by any given organization in any given year. Over a thousand letters were sent out accompanied by folder clippings setting forth the purpose of the fund and the resulting subscriptions amounted to $234 from eighteen subscribers. This amounted practically to a complete failure. Since neither the department nor national quotas were realized the campaign is being continued in this state and developments now are that it was clearly a mistake for us to undertake even the part we did this year. It is quite certain that this post will be asked to undertake another more intensive campaign for this purpose during the coming year. It is a matter which will require very careful consideration.

Publicity.

Kingston Post has probably received more publicity this year than ever before that it is good for us, demonstrated that it is good for us. The Legion and its work will stand upon it. The best kind of publicity we can have is that which is initiated by ourselves and directed along lines of correct and complete information. The newspapers of Kingston have been most liberal to us in the assignment of space and have given us splendid cooperation in putting the Legion story across. We have also enjoyed the cooperation of the theatres in the showing of slides and films. The responsibility for post publicity has this year been shared by several of your officers. Our experience seems to show, however, that better results could be obtained if this work were at least coordinated by one member whose ability and interest could be centered upon this vital feature of post work. Since publicity work so naturally aligns itself with the duties of the historian I suggest that it might be well to add this to his other duties and that candidates for that office be carefully selected with that in mind.

Public Good Will.

I think the general public has been inclined to greatly underestimate the purpose and the possibilities of the American Legion. This is probably as true in Kingston as it is everywhere. Most of the opposition and indifference which has been encountered could be traced to a lack of proper information regarding the Legion. Once our plans and work were really understood, we made true and fast friends. Kingston Post has made great strides in this direction this year. Our various activities and particularly the work in connection with our building campaign have brought us a greater portion of good will than is the fortune of many organizations to enjoy. To accomplish the work that is before us in the years to come we need the good will of all of our fellow citizens. Let us ever be watchful for opportunities to husband it and to improve it, to the end that every one will speak well of Kingston Post and be glad to cooperate with us in all our undertakings.

Cooperation With The City Government.

Another advantage which this post has enjoyed to a marked degree this year is a hearty cooperation on the part of the city government. I believe this has been given because of a recognition of the value which the American Legion represents to the community rather than for any questionable purposes of the present administration. Our mayor has, by his presence and by his personal effort, assisted us on several important occasions. He was particularly active in our building campaign, serving as chairman of our citizens' committee. A meeting place has been furnished us in the City Hall, which under the circumstances obtaining this year has been most welcome. The Board of Public Works has on numerous occasions rendered us valuable service. The Water Works Department has granted us free water service for our building. The Common Council on several occasions has shown their goodwill and interest in our welfare. Let us see to it that, as opportunity offers, we are as ready to cooperate with our city officials as they have been with us.

Finance.

While it is an occasion for careful consideration, rather than for alarm, the financial situation of Kingston Post now becomes one of primary importance. Our past financial problems are as nothing compared with those of the future. During the coming year, especially, it is fundamental that great care be used in carrying out our financial program. We are not launching out as a scheme of fixed expenses which it will be impossible for us to alter. I refer particularly to the expense of the Memorial Building. A larger part of this expense will have to be met out of profits derived from post activities. There should be arranged well in advance of the time the money is needed and be the object of energetic support by every member of the post.

Women's Auxiliary.

This report would be incomplete if no mention were made of the valuable aid we have received from our auxiliary. The interest and energy manifested by these ladies might well be emulated by members of the post. They have had a large part in the welfare work which has been performed and have on all occasions been ready to assist the post in any way possible. A number of them rendered distinguished service on the building campaign and at the Victory Ball.

I have ever been proud to be a Legionnaire. I believe wholeheartedly in the Legion and its future. It has been a great pleasure for me as time goes on to see the Legion in action, living up to the great ideals for which it stands. It has been most gratifying to me to have enjoyed the confidence and the support you have accorded me as your leader for the past year. I shall always look back upon it as one of the happiest years of my life—one where we worked together that Kingston Post might be a greater post. And as I now turn over to my continued service in the ranks of your past commanders, ever ready to be of service whenever and wherever you have need of us.

Respectfully submitted,
GEO. W. POTTER,
Commander.

PARDEE'S AGENCY

USE COTTON MATERIALS IN VARIOUS WAYS

How Many Women Are Good Judges of Cotton Fabric?

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Did you know that velvet, corduroy and India linen are all cotton materials, in spite of their trade names or their appearance? That there are almost a hundred common cotton materials women use in different ways for family clothing or household purposes? Do you know the difference between spun and reeled silk, worsted and woolen, satin and sateen? That although we instinctively look for goods that are "all wool and a yard wide," such material as part-cotton serge may give very good service considering its cost? That paper "yarn" is found occasionally in fabrics, combined with cotton, wool, or even silk fabrics?

The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture in its textile division is studying a great many such questions with a view to aiding the housewife in the selection of the materials her family needs. Women ought to know more about the various kinds of fibers in each sort of material, the best materials for any given purpose, and how to make simple tests for durability and quality in each case. A cheap fiber is not necessarily a poor investment if the purchaser knows what she is getting, if it suits her purpose, and if the price is what it is worth.

Cotton, the bureau points out, may be chosen for its low cost, ease of laundering, coolness and durability; mercerized cotton because it combines durability and beauty with low cost; linen for its absorptive properties, resistance to soil, beauty and durability; wool for its warmth; silk for its great beauty and durability; and artificial silk, now frequently called rayon, for its extreme luster. Mixtures of fibers may be desirable in cases where wearing quality has not been too greatly sacrificed in order to lower cost. There are also many grades of cotton, linen or other fibers, with which the purchasers should be familiar to some extent. The method of weaving a fabric is an important point, bearing upon its durability and attractiveness. Such familiar weaves as the basket weave, the twill or the satin, mean to most of us entirely different materials, and influence our selection. The finish of a material should be understood, as, for instance, the difference between mercerization, which is a process that strengthens cotton and gives it a gloss, and the finishes produced by applying paste-like fillings to the cloth. The subject of dyes is a very large one in itself, but the housekeeper can learn how to test whether the color of a material is fast to the purpose intended—fast to light or to water.

FILL COOKIE JAR FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Supply of Sweet Cakes Is Valuable Asset.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

As the Christmas holidays draw near, a supply of cookies, kept in air-tight tins or jars, is a valuable asset to the housekeeper. Perhaps she has boys and girls coming home from boarding school or college, with seemingly insatiable appetites and glowing recollections of the good things mother makes; or the holiday season brings unexpected callers, and visitors from a distance; or there is need for a few last-minute Christmas remembrances, which may well take the form of a box or fancy basket of delicious home-made cookies.

Peanuts or other nuts, chopped or whole, dates, raisins, figs, or frostings of various kinds may be used to modify the recipes given below by the United States Department of Agriculture. The chopped nuts and dried lard or other fat containing no water. If butter or margarine is used one-sixth more fat or two tablespoonsful will be required. Place the fat in warm place until it becomes soft, though not melted, so that it may be combined easily with the sugar. This is just as satisfactory and much quicker than the laborious method of creaming together the cold fat and sugar. After the fat and sugar have been thoroughly combined stir in the beaten egg yolks and add alternately the dry ingredients, which have been mixed and sifted together, and the liquid. At the start add only a small quantity of liquid. (If too much is added, it dissolves the sugar, and the fat separates into large masses that must be recombed with the other ingredients by beating, thus making useless the work of combining the fat and sugar in the beginning.) Add the flavoring and fold in the well-beaten egg whites. Drop small portions of the mixture on a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (about 375 degrees Fahrenheit). This amount makes about 50 cookies.

Crisp Cookies.

$\frac{1}{2}$ cupful milk or $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful less salt
4 cupfuls sifted soft-wheat flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cupfuls sifted hard-wheat flour
1 cupful fat (see preceding recipe)

Combine the ingredients in the same way as for drop cookies. Roll the dough thin, handling it no more than necessary, cut it in any desired shapes, and bake the cookies on a greased baking sheet in a fairly hot oven (about 375 to 400 degrees Fahrenheit). Instead of rolling out the dough it may be chilled and sliced thinly. Whether rolled or sliced, chilling the dough makes it easier to handle. This amount makes about 100 thin cookies.

Children love plain cookies cut in fancy shapes, and if one makes cookies often, it may pay to have a number of animal or other interesting cutters on hand. They are made of tin and are relatively inexpensive.

How to Resize Rug and Stop It From Curling

Resizing adds to the durability of the rug and makes it look much better. It can be done at home or by a carpet dealer, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

The rug should be stretched tight and true and tacked at frequent intervals, face down, on a floor or some other flat surface where it can remain undisturbed. It should then be sprinkled generously with a solution made by soaking and dissolving one-fourth pound of flake lime in one-half gallon of water in a double boiler or a container surrounded by hot water. The rug should be allowed to dry for at least 24 hours. If it is light weight, care should be taken not to put on so much lime that it penetrates to the silk side.

Cancer Victims Can Live Long By Good Care

Building Up Resistance Rather Than Seeking Cure Is Aim Of Science Now—Expert Sees Immune Serum As Yet In Experimental Stage Of Greatest Value.

St. Louis, Dec. 22—Cancer victims have an incurable disease, but if they keep themselves in good condition they will live long enough to die of something else.

This was the "encouraging" message brought to St. Louis by Dr. J. L. Yates of Milwaukee, in a discussion of the latest methods of combating the disease. The latest scientific effort is centered on building up a resistance rather than effecting a cure.

"We tell these people," Dr. Yates said, "you have an absolutely incurable disease but a disease from which recovery is possible. If you will keep yourself in good condition, you will live long enough to die of something else."

Must Be Treated. "Patients under treatment for cancer are like those with tuberculosis. Don't think they have concluded the treatment when they recover from an operation. They should continue it for the rest of their lives."

Dr. Yates' first suggestion in the prevention of the disease is to prevent the marriage of the unfit.

Heretofore cancer has been studied only on the offensive," he continued. "We have neglected to increase the defensive side. Defense is a reaction of the cells. Cancer is an old and widespread disease. No race, no class, no age is immune. Susceptibility appears after the peak of life."

"We are told that emanations from X-ray or radium will kill cancer cells. But when they are below the surface there is no dose of X-ray that will kill cancer cells that is tolerable to the host. We have had many stormy discussions, but there is not one whit of evidence that any deep-lying cancer has ever been killed by radiation. Radiation is a defensive measure."

Sees Hope In Serum. "Immune serum holds tremendous promise. Its production experimentally is in its infancy, for just one reason. It has been impossible to grow it readily. When that is brought about we will have an antigen which will make it possible to stir up something in the human body that will add effectively to resistance."

Sunlight, Dr. Yates said, as in the case of tuberculosis, is one of the best means to aid sufferers of cancer and of raising resistance to the disease.

Urges Legion to "Do Unto Others"

A strong appeal to all Posts and members of the American Legion in this state to make this Christmas one of cheer to all needy and sick veterans of the World War has been issued by Colonel Harry C. Wilder, state commander.

"What is your Post doing during the Christmas season?" asks Commander Wilder in the bulletin to Posts just issued. "Our duty is plain. There must be no needy or sick veterans or their dependents that are not being looked out for. Your Post officers and committees must make a particular effort to discover and care for all such cases. Let no deserving case be without Christmas cheer. Put yourself in their shoes—'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.'"

"The holiday spirit in the Legion is not confined to any one season. The Legion has been doing big unselfish things for the disabled buddy year in and year out. No less than two-thirds of a million individual cases have been handled by the Legion with the Veterans' Bureau. There is nothing finer than the work our able-bodied comrades have done for the disabled. This is a proper season to recall these accomplishments."

"Get this. The people outside still know too little of the real Legion principles and achievements. Tell the Legion story wherever you can. Make an influence felt. Doing that one job well is in itself a fitting Christmas gift from every Legionnaire to the American Legion."

"Deeply grateful for the wonderful support I am having from everyone, I wish you all, every one of you, most sincerely a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

WHY, WHEN AND WHERE OF FASHIONS.

High Crowns and High Headdresses.

It is said that ladies "are dressed," while women merely "wear clothes"—but looking back into the reign of Henry the Sixth, one could well prefer to be put into the latter category. Very seldom have members of the fair sex been so overdressed, and this is especially true of their headgear.

If one could see back—and look in at the assembly hour, for instance—what bundles of vanity and groups of women would appear—quite dwarfing the men with their towering headdresses—carrying themselves with that uncomfortable erectness which always comes from balancing a heavy weight upon the head. The waists of these ladies were way up under their bosoms—their feet seemingly a yard long! Minarets, towers—horns, heart-shaped erections, pearl studded golden cages, flowing draperies of color from high crowns—these just begin the list of the strange adornment for that lady's head! Oh, my lovely one—how, pray, did the gentle whispers of love ever penetrate those enormous monuments of millinery?

It is amusing to read the accounts of the railing of moralists at this time—overdressing received just as much upbraiding as the so-called undressing of the modern generation. Lurid pictures of hell and purgatory were painted, in which the head-dresses were transformed into instruments of torture—but, even as today, the charming ladies only tossed their heads—figuratively, of course, since any real tossing would be impossible—and continued in their wicked ways.

Editor Writes Bathtime Story

History of Bathing From Early Times to the Present Prepared by Editor Lewis W. Britton For The State Department of Health.

Lewis W. Britton, associate editor of the Domestic Engineering Publications of Chicago, has recently prepared for the State Department of Health "The Story of the Bath" which relates in semi-humorous vein the history of bathing from early times to the present.

"This is not a bedtime story," said Mr. Britton. "It is a bathtime story. Do you ever think, as you sit gracefully on the soap, that the story of your bathtime reaches back into the days before people had soap in which to slip? There are, of course, stories of the bath that aren't true. I refer to the stories young boys tell of baths they take when not under a watchful eye."

Early Bathing.
"When Egypt was the crown of civilization, the Egyptians were frequent bathers; when Greece was the glory of the world, her bathing was the glory of the Greeks; when all roads led to Rome, all feet led to the Roman baths."

"In Japan where everybody takes a bath a day and apologizes for not taking two, progress moves at a swift pace. In Russia, where millions of people get only three baths in their whole lives—one after they are born, one before they are married, and one after they die—there is stagnation, poverty, misery."

The First Bathroom.
"So far as we know the first bathroom was in the city of Knossos, on an island of Crete, four thousand years ago. The ruins of a much older model, dating back only twenty-five hundred years, have been found in Targus, which is in Greece. The Greeks were the first to use tubs, though the tubs they used were not tubs at all. They were bowls—overgrown punch bowls, you might say, which rested upon pedestals three feet high. They were large enough to hold the water for a bath but not large enough to hold a bather. The bather stood on a slab, dipped water from a bowl and poured it over his body. The Greeks regarded warm water as enervating—effeminate—I think you called it—and so they took their baths cold."

Moses Taught Hygiene.
"Among other things, Moses taught hygiene, sanitation and the art of living. He knew that to prevent disease and to build a strong race of people."

The Roman bath was called Thermae, meaning heat, from which we get thermos—thermos bottle. The Thermas did not have canned music, electric lights nor ash trays, but, in magnificence they outshone any club of this year of peace and plenty.

"Rome knew only two classes of people—the washed and the unwashed. And then, as now, the unwashed were crowded beyond the pale of polite society."

The Roman Baths.
"The largest Therma covered a square mile of ground. The huge Diocletian could take care of thirty-two hundred bathers at one time, while the Caracalla, the finest of them all, had room for half as many. Besides hot and cold baths the Thermas were provided with perspiring rooms, dressing rooms, swimming pools, athletic fields, gymnasiums, lecture halls, and places for rest, refreshment and conversation. And there were Thermas for women as well as for men."

"In these public baths the Romans exercised, kept their bodies clean, stimulated the circulation of their blood, rested, enjoyed the companionship of their fellows and fed their souls with the beautiful carvings of ancient sculptors—all for one quadrans, which is Uncle Sam's money, would be one-fourth of one cent."

"For six hundred years, so Pliny, the historian, says, Rome used no medicine, but her baths."

A Roman Cleansing.
"A real Roman cleansing consisted of a sweat, a scrape and a shower. Or, as the invention of the shower was yet to be, perhaps 'pouring' is a better word. That is, after a sweat and scrape, water was poured over the body until it was washed clean. Then came a massage or rubdown, followed by a good rest. Thus from Rome, by the way of Turkey, arrived the Turkish bath, which finally reached America in 1865."

"A clean nation is a progressive nation, and a progressive nation is a ruling nation. But alas, alack, the thirst for power—the spirit of conquest reaching out and out for more—and Rome crumbled, and progress crumbled with her. And the world went to sleep and slept for a thousand years, or so it is in another way, a thousand years without a bath."

"A thousand years without a bath! Surely those were Dark Ages—dark with dirt. But wait."

Knights of the Bath.
"The Order of the Bath, from whence emerged the Knights of the Bath, was a little pleasanter set ago by Henry the Fourth of England in the year thirteen hundred ninety-nine. But was it a pleasanter? One can never tell about an Englishman. Henry may have been serious. He lived in a serious time, and serious times makes serious people. Europe was beginning to run its eyes and creep out of the fifth of ten mouldy centuries. Perhaps King Henry thought it time to wash up."

which is to wake up.

"In days of old, the knights were bold," so the poet wrote—but not bold enough to take a bath. Henry knew this. He knew that a knight shied at water like an elephant shies at a mouse. Hence the Order of the Bath."

"Candidates for this order were selected by the King. But, before a candidate could be initiated, he must take a bath. Ah! there was the rub! 'Having been led into the bath, and having survived the shock, the knight became a shining example to others, who, though less favored, were equally in need of water."

Wesley and Wedgwood.
"More than three thousand years after Moses went up into the mountaintop and forgot to come back, another teacher, John Wesley, the first Methodist, was riding along a road in England when he came to the dirty little village of Burslem."

"It so happened that in Burslem there lived a poor, lame potter by the name of Josiah Wedgwood. This potter was to become the richest man in England, who up to that time had made his own fortune; also, he was to become the grandfather of Charles Darwin, the world's greatest scientist. 'Now Wedgwood was a worker who moved much teaching with his work. John Wesley drew rein as he saw Wedgwood trying to teach his potters the lesson Moses had tried to teach—that keeping clean increased health, which increases energy, which increases efficiency. And there, sitting on his horse, and seeing what he saw, Wesley spoke for the first time the now famous phrase. 'Cleanliness is next to Godliness.'"

"And Wedgwood looked up, smiled, and added 'Yes, and sometimes it is next to impossibility.'"

No Fast Move Here.
"Great as we are, and smart as we are, we Americans have not moved so fast, sanitarily speaking. It is only a hundred years since the first pumping station in this country started to pump. Chicago was our first city to have a real sewerage system, and that was not until 1855. We had no public baths until 1891. Even today some families think so little of their bath tubs that the use them for coal or vegetable bins."

"The science of living, or sanitation—they mean the same—has to do with heat, light, water, cleanliness and ventilation. And these have to do with the five most important things of life—comfort, health, ambition, efficiency, happiness. Where sanitation is a stranger, sickness is a constant guest."

Powerful Divers' Lamp.
The electric lamp carried by deep-sea divers has four times the strength of an ordinary locomotive headlight, and enables a diver to enter a sunken ship and to read figures on its steam gauge."

Santa Omits Rods At Crosspatch

Formerly He Carried Them for Naughty Children, but Changed Conditions Make Him Provide Only Gifts When He Goes There Saturday Night.

Speaking of Santa Claus coming to Crosspatch the evening after Christmas, as he will this year, Mrs. Cross says:

"It is interesting to recall that our early Dutch settlers, in this very section of New York state, brought Santa Claus to the new world. The early Puritan settlers along the New England coast would have naught of Santa Claus or his gaudies but our Dutch forefathers couldn't leave him behind.

"The date for Santa's visit three hundred years ago was always December 6 and the little Dutch boys and girls set out their wooden shoes on the hearth instead of hanging up their stockings. Santa Claus was rather a serious person in those days and carried a bundle of rods for naughty children. Later, the date of Santa Claus's visit changed to New Year's Eve and remained there until about fifty years ago, when the jolly old fellow became closely identified with Christmas day.

"It was our American people who transformed Santa Claus into the stout, jolly old fellow that we all know and he brings gifts to all the children, leaving discipline to others."

So Santa won't in the least mind coming to Crosspatch Saturday evening, December 26. He won't be in such a rush as during the earlier part of the week, and while he sends the gifts by auto or aeroplane, he likes to get out the reindeers and the sleigh for himself.

The pennies for the Crosspatch shower were given this year by a lot of children who said they could hear them jingling "Merry Christmas" as they dropped into a stocking, and one feels sure that the children who come to Crosspatch party will hear the kindly greeting very plainly.

There will be the stocking filled with gifts, a box of candy and special gifts of dolls and toys, not only for the children but for all the grown-ups as well.

Mrs. Cross wants everyone to come and to remember that it's a real Christmas party, with no expense to anyone. The children and grown-ups always look forward with joy to the Christmas party.

Mrs. Cross has been spending all her spare time for weeks getting ready the Christmas celebration. She will come from New York the morning of December 26 and hopes the young people of the neighborhood will help with the decorations, so all may be beautiful for the evening.

Former Cop Shot Dead by Officer

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Lawrence B. Joyce, 29 years old, former patrolman, was shot dead by a railroad detective this morning while attempting to hold up the baggage room at the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railroad station at Orchard Park.

Sergeant Thomas Ramier, of the railroad police, was guarding the baggage room when he heard a noise. Investigating, he found nothing, but when he returned to the baggage room he was confronted by a man standing in the doorway, with a revolver leveled at him.

"Throw up your hands or I'll kill you," was the greeting thrust at Ramier. The officer grabbed his revolver, however, and shot the intruder three times.

Standing in DUSO League

Having lost out in its first two Duso League matches the K. M. S. squad now stands tied for the cellar position with Middletown. The Middies have fallen prey to their scholastic rivals, in both league games while the locals have forfeited one match and also lost out in the second which was played undisturbed. Poughkeepsie being the only other school that has played two games and having won both stands at present at the top of the league race. The Bridge City outfit had no trouble in trimming the Middies at Middletown, Saturday by a 36 to 14 score. Port Jervis was the only team that did not play a league match last week although they defeated Warwick High by a 30 to 21 tally in the Port city.

The next league matches will be played January 8 when Kingston meets the Middies at Middletown.

282ND COMMUNION AT FIRST DUTCH CHURCH

At the First Dutch Church on Sunday morning was the two hundred and sixty-second observance of the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The service was highly solemn and impressive the audience was large, the classic interior of the church beautifully was decorated with evergreens and flowers, and lighted with large scarlet candles. The deeply interesting sermon of Dr. Boeve was predicated upon the great question as to why the life and character of the Saviour for nineteen centuries unfalteringly had held the admiration, veneration and affection equally of the greatest and most insignificant of the men and women of each succeeding generation, and despite all demoralizing influences of that time held it today. Seated in the spacious pews were many members of those old Kingston families who for nine generations have been connected with the First Dutch, the history of which is interwoven with that of Kingston and the nation and in whose church yard sleeps the first governor of the state surrounded by colonels of the Continental Army and many soldiers of his command in the war of the Revolution.

MUNSEY'S FORTUNE OVER FORTY MILLION

New York, Dec. 22.—Frank A. Munsey began his career as a $40 a month grocer's clerk, establishing a fortune of more than $40,000,000 through the genius of his subsequent publishing ventures.

Although at various points in his career he owned as many as 17 newspapers and ten magazines, Munsey had but two daily publications and two periodicals when he died today.

They were the New York Sun, New York Evening Telegram, Arcturion, All Story magazine, and Munsey's magazine.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 22.—Professional selling high call loan rates and the indifference of bullish traders put an effective damper on the forward movement in stock prices today.

The bears made little impression on the market leaders in the industrial and motor stocks. Chrysler rebounded sharply from yesterday's low level and made a seven point advance to 131. Hudson Motor reflected the effect of the linking of the name of Henry Ford with that company and advanced six points.

The public utility and oil stocks made several attempts to respond to the favorable news developments which "broke" during the day, but with very little success. Railroad stocks made a good showing, and pools in the specialty stocks whipped up a low of the most active issues for advertising purposes.

The market in some of the well known stocks appeared to be in an over sold condition and therefore quickly responsive to any considerable influx of buying orders.

Brooklyn Manhattan Transit sold off a few points on profit taking following the placing of the stock on a dividend basis.

SERVICES AT ALBANY AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Two mid-week Christmas services will be held in connection with the work of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church. One will be on Christmas eve at the time of the regular prayer meeting when the appropriate topic will be "The Messianic Prophecies of the Bible." One by one in a brief and graphic way the principal prophecies of the Messiah will be taken up and considered, showing that the coming of Christ was the fulfillment of an age-long hope.

The other service will be an early morning prayer meeting on Christmas day, beginning promptly at eight o'clock and lasting forty minutes. At this service the Christmas carols will be sung, and a bright and happy time is anticipated.

Next Sunday there will be a special musical program both morning and evening. The Bible school entertainment and Christmas tree exercises will be held on Tuesday evening, December 23, at 7:30 o'clock.

SENATOR KING WOULD PUNISH GOSSIP MONGERS

Washington, Dec. 22.—A bill to punish "malicious gossip" in the District of Columbia, was sponsored in the senate this afternoon by Senator King, Democrat of Utah.

It would provide a fine of $100 or a prison term of 100 days for any person found guilty of "willfully and maliciously starting a false story or repeating false rumors about any other person."

Marriage Dissolved.

An order dissolving the marriage of S. Lester Munsterly with Frederic Adam Munsterly has been granted by Supreme Court Justice G. D. H. Haskin under the domestic relation law. The parties were married October 23, 1912, and defendant's whereabouts has not been learned since he disappeared on May 31, 1914. One year from the marriage is given into the custody of the minor, Benjamin, a son of defendant's attorney for the plaintiff.

Senior Surviving Officer of Shenandoah Denies That Dirigible Had Been Improperly Equipped.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Survivors of the Shenandoah disaster had their final inning today before the naval court of inquiry and through Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, senior officer, their spokesman, flatly denied the dirigible had been improperly equipped or operated and insisted the wreck was due to "an act of God."

In a lengthy final argument Rosendahl summed up all of the evidence secured during the extended investigation. He arraigned certain witnesses, including Colonel William Mitchell, who testified the giant air liner was improperly operated and denied that Lieutenant Commander Zachary Lansdowne went on the fatal flight under protest.

"From the direct examination of Colonel Mitchell it was very apparent to us he had no expert knowledge of his own relative to the disaster," Rosendahl said.

Rosendahl insisted there was no evidence to show Lansdowne protested the flight because of fear of the weather in the early part of September when the flight took place.

"To believe then the alleged reluctance of Commander Lansdowne to carry out the flight as ordered—that such an officer would jeopardize his crew and the ship willfully and knowingly—not only approaches the height of absurdity but slanders the dead," he said.

Rosendahl reviewed expert testimony to show the Shenandoah was not weakened by the corrosion or the strain caused by breaking away from her mooring mast at Lakehurst in 1924 and defended the new valve system which was criticized by many witnesses.

Rosendahl made a plea for construction of dirigible experimentation.

"It would be in keeping with neither tradition nor sound business to abandon at this stage an enterprise on which such an immense amount of effort has already been expended and which with slightly more expenditure will bring forth the potential value and possibilities of this type of aircraft. We are ready to do and give our utmost toward the continuation and furthering of this project and urge the court to recommend the furtherance of dirigible development and operation in the navy."

Called primarily to fix responsibility for the fatal crash over Ohio last September, which caused a loss of 14 lives, the inquiry developed a wide variety of information bearing on all phases of airship design and operation which admittedly will be used in constructing a newer and better Shenandoah, if congress permits.

It was indicated that the case would be in the hands of the naval court of inquiry for findings late today.

CAMPERS FOR BETTER UTILIZATION OF RUBBER

Washington, Dec. 22.—In an effort to offset the high price imposed by the alleged British rubber monopoly, American manufacturers under the direction of Secretary Hoover, today launched a nation wide campaign for the better utilization of rubber.

Chief rubber users of the country met with Hoover at the commerce department to map out the campaign.

The chief purpose is to combat the "high prices on rubber imposed by the East Indian rubber combine."

An investigation of the rubber and other alleged foreign monopolies has been ordered by the house.

KING GEORGE GRATIFIED OVER IRISH AGREEMENT.

Belfast, Dec. 22.—"I am deeply gratified by the agreement between the governments of England, North Ireland and the Irish Free State over the boundary question," declared King George in his prerogative speech read in the Ulster parliament.

"It is my earnest prayer," said the king, "that family relations between the governments and peoples of Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State may be promoted and cemented by the spirit of good will and friendship to the common advantage of both."

Will Continue Fight, Says Lewis

Nothing Left To Do But Fight Says President Lewis Following Refusal of Operators To Meet at Scranton.

Philadelphia, Dec. 22.—"The mine workers have made every possible contribution, consistent with honor, toward peace in the industry. Despite our efforts there is not peace. There is nothing left to do but continue to fight."

This was contained in a statement issued today by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Lewis had indicated a willingness to enter a joint conference with the operators at Scranton this afternoon but the operators had refused.

Lewis's statement follows: "In the conference of mayors of the anthracite region at Harrisburg, Mayor John F. Durkan, of Scranton, wrote and introduced the resolution which was passed by the committee of seven mayors. Mayor Durkan became the chairman of this committee and as such interpreted the resolution to the operators and mine workers representatives. The mine workers representatives accepted his interpretation and accepted his invitation to meet. The operators declined to accept his interpretation of the resolution and declined to accept his invitation to meet."

"Thus again the public has an opportunity to judge as to the sincerity of both sides. The attitude of the operators toward the proposed Scranton conference is just the same as was their attitude toward the conference at Harrisburg, called by Governor Pinchot, which the mine workers attended and which the operators spurned."

"The mine workers have made every possible contribution, consistent with honor, toward peace in the industry. Despite our efforts there is no peace. There is nothing left but to continue to fight, which we propose to do with all vigor and in a manner designed to protect to the fullest degree the interests of the mine workers."

Coolidge Pays Tribute to Munsey

Washington, Dec. 22.—President Coolidge today expressed sorrow at the passing of Frank A. Munsey, New York publisher.

In a message to W. P. Dewart, general manager of the New York Sun, the president said: "The death of Frank A. Munsey has taken one of the outstanding publishers of our time. He started as a poor boy in Maine. With energy and indomitable will to succeed, typical of our true American spirit, he conquered all obstacles in his path."

"As an editor he reached a position of influence in the country. His support of measures appealing to his judgment was strong and unflinching. Mr. Munsey was a member of the commission appointed by me to arrange for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. The swiftness of his passing has been the more of a shock, for very recently he was my guest at the cabinet dinner."

Similar expressions were voiced by other high public officials who knew Mr. Munsey.

"The career of Mr. Munsey was one of the most notable in the annals of American journalism," said Harry S. New, postmaster general. "Endowed with a brilliant mind, he was a great figure in the newspaper field from which he will be greatly missed."

U. S. Will Enter Arms Conference

President Coolidge Decides To Accept League of Nations Invitation To Participate in Disarmament Parley.

Washington, Dec. 22.—President Coolidge has decided to accept the League of Nations invitation to participate in its disarmament conference. It was plainly indicated at the White House today following the cabinet meeting.

The league's invitation is being considered from a constructive standpoint, the president told callers and with a view to ascertaining how the United States can best cooperate with the purpose of the league in obtaining world wide reduction of armaments.

Simultaneously with this clarification of the White House attitude, there was introduced in both houses of congress at noon resolutions endorsing the proposed gathering, and authorizing Mr. Coolidge to appoint the necessary American delegates.

Democrats sponsored the authorization in both senate and house.

In the senate, King of Utah, put in a resolution setting forth that the American government "is interested in the prevention of war and promotion of peace," and then, citing the league's conference specifically, advised the president to "participate in any conference respecting limitations of land, maritime or air armaments which may be called by the League of Nations and to which the government of the United States shall be invited to send representatives."

In the house, Moore of Virginia put in a resolution "requesting" Mr. Coolidge to accept the league's invitation, and authorizing him to name American delegates.

Passage of either resolution or both would, of course, give the president the congressional sanction he has deemed it wise to get before taking final action.

While the White House statement plainly indicated that Mr. Coolidge had made up his mind to "go in" the extent of American participation had not yet been determined, and probably will not be for some time yet.

Accidents Caused The Bloodstains

In Explanation of Michael Enright for Stains Found on His Clothing—Says She Was Drunk and Had A Nose Bleed.

Cornwall, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Farm and household accidents of minor nature accounted for the bloodstains on the clothing of Michael Enright, brother of Police Commissioner Enright of New York, who is being held in connection with the murder of Timothy Shea, Addison farmer.

The story of accidents is Enright's explanation for the stains, according to Under Sheriff Ray Hardenbrook who testified today at a hearing before Justice of Peace Wellington.

Hardenbrook swore that after Enright's arrest, he told the story while at the Bath jail. According to the undersheriff's testimony Enright explained the blood stains on his coat as the result of being bumped the afternoon before the murder by an unruly horse. Enright said his nose bled. According to the witness testified, told him he found Shea drunk on the floor of the Enright home and in attempting to help him to his feet Shea's nose began to bleed.

Accounting for the bloody finger prints on a towel in the Enright home, Hardenbrook testified Enright had said that Shea had cut his fingers while washing dishes and wiped his hands on the towel.

Only one other witness, Warren Root, a neighboring farmer was sworn. He told of seeing Shea's body soon after it had been discovered in the road way.

Justice Wellington adjourned the hearing until Monday when additional evidence will be taken and decision made whether there is sufficient evidence to hold Enright for the grand jury.

Jack Dempsey Wants to Fight

Who, When and Where May Be Forthcoming From the Champion at Any Time—"Tex" Interest in Champion Revived.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

New York, Dec. 22.—Jack Dempsey, who at last is beginning to talk as if he really wants to fight, may shortly receive an offer from Tex Rickard, the noted New York promoter, to stage a battle between the champion and Harry Wills, the giant negro.

In just eight days Dempsey will be free to do business with Rickard unless Floyd Fitzsimmons, the middle-west promoter, performs a miracle and produces the $250,000 required to bind the contract the champion made with Fitzsimmons and several Indiana men to meet Wills next year.

There have been indications of late that the proposed Dempsey-Wills fight will not be pulled off in Indiana, or thereabouts, and a growing belief that if the fight is to take place it will be in the east, either in New York under Rickard's direction or at Boyles' Thirty Acres in New Jersey.

Rickard could put on the fight at either Boyle's Thirty Acres or at the Yankee Stadium. Both of these arenas are available to him. Both would hold the tremendous crowd that would be attracted to a world's championship encounter.

"Tex" has given evidence in the last twenty-four hours of a revived interest in Dempsey. For several months Rickard has displayed only apathetic interest in the affairs of the champion and the numerous statements that have been put out and attributed to Dempsey.

But there has been a decided change in the tenor of Dempsey's very recent statements. The champion apparently makes it obvious he wants to fight, and to fight for the promoter who can produce the bank roll. That man seems to be none other than Rickard.

One report was that before sundown, tonight, Dempsey will receive a concrete offer from the east. Rickard already has the signature of Jack Kearns for a Dempsey-Wills fight. It is anticipated by knowing men in the fighting game that something interesting in the way of an announcement may be forthcoming from the champion at any time and that it will be a definite declaration of when Dempsey will fight, who, and where.

Bouts Tonight.
New York, Dec. 22.—Philly McGraw, of Detroit and Luis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight, will meet in a 12-round bout here tonight. Despite Vicentini's famous right swing, McGraw is favored to win.

Spencer Gardner, of Newport, R. I., will face Moe Ginsberg of New York, in a 12-round semi-final feather-weight match.

Armory Five Won From Kingston

The Kingston Tri-County League quietest was neck and neck with the Armory Five of Poughkeepsie at the latter's court Monday evening, until the final ten seconds when Peabody of the Bridge City Quintet shot one from scrimmage breaking the deadlock and putting his team in front for the final score, 20 to 28.

The game was nip and tuck throughout, the score at half time being Armory 12, Kingston 11. The regular Kingston line-up was in the game and they fought hard and worked well. Dolson led the scorers with six fields and a foul for a total of thirteen points. Maher of the winners was second with ten.
